

---

Accountant type jobs???

Posted by junkman306 - 2008/07/06 09:40

---

So my wife is freakishly phenominal with the finances and she wants to go to school to be an accountant, but she has no time with her new job and I don't make enough for her to not work. Does anybody have a friend who needs someone to keep books and stuff that would be an 8-5 position so she could go to school? I wish I could explain better. She can tell me exactly how much money we have and how much we can spend up to a month in advance, day to day. She keeps all reciepts and paperwork for a year and has 2 filing cabinets in the spare bedroom with every freaking thing seperated by what it is and if it's mine or hers or whatever. All of our bills are paid like 2 months in advance. She's so anal about it. She helps friends out on occasion to keep their bills and accounts balanced and she really seems like she wants to do it professionally, but of course no one will hire her because she has no degree. If anyone knows someone who might take her up on a job opportunity, that would be awesome. She does want to go to school for it, so said person wouldn't have to worry for long. She already has a years worth of general studies credits from college that are still good. She's just looking for an opportunity. :)

=====

Re:Accountant type jobs???

Posted by liltbird - 2008/07/06 10:11

---

I know a mechanic that wanted someone to keep books for him but it's been a couple of months. I'll check into it though.

=====

Re:Accountant type jobs???

Posted by junkman306 - 2008/07/06 10:40

---

liltbird wrote:

I know a mechanic that wanted someone to keep books for him but it's been a couple of months. I'll check into it though.

Sweet!!! Find out about pay too. She has to stay above a certain hourly rate. :)

=====

Re:Accountant type jobs???

Posted by liltbird - 2008/07/07 13:31

---

Ok so I don't actually know if he still needs someone or not or any of the details but it was for T Birds Automotive (Steve's the boss). I had a card with his number on it but haven't found it yet to ask him.

=====