
Good nite at the track (midnight madness)

Posted by draykas - 2008/09/07 04:41

Well missed a few of you at the track it was a fun nite. Devin is the guy to watch ran a 12.66 on street tires;) . I dont know evrrybodys times but super 6 had a new best run too. I after many attempts and errors finally got it lined out to make my 11 sec run 11.98. The best part is 1.67 60 ft:woohoo: If you didnt come you missed the jig on the car special thanks to Devin Jason and Tracy who all helped me get it right

=====

Re:Good nite at the track (midnight madness)

Posted by Super six - 2008/09/07 04:47

My new best was a 15.05 which is so close to the 14 sec mark but my times have improved every time I go to the track so hopefully next time it will be 14s.

=====

Re:Good nite at the track (midnight madness)

Posted by draykas - 2008/09/07 04:52

we will get you there

=====

Re:Good nite at the track (midnight madness)

Posted by junkman306 - 2008/09/07 08:59

draykas wrote:

Well missed a few of you at the track it was a fun nite. Devin is the guy to watch ran a 12.66 on street tires;) . I dont know evrrybodys times but super 6 had a new best run too. I after many attempts and errors finally got it lined out to make my 11 sec run 11.98. The best part is 1.67 60 ft:woohoo: If you didnt come you missed the jig on the car special thanks to Devin Jason and Tracy who all helped me get it right Yep. Warren was up on top of the car, flyinhillbilly style. I think everybody had a new best last night. Devin, Warren, Wes, Supersix. I ran a new best of 14.51. I know it's not that exciting, but it's a little better. :)

=====

Re:Good nite at the track (midnight madness)

Posted by junkman306 - 2008/09/07 09:02

Super six wrote:

My new best was a 15.05 which is so close to the 14 sec mark but my times have improved every time I go to the track so hopefully next time it will be 14s.

Dude, I was pretty impressed. That's pretty quick for a v6 car with nothing really done to it. ;) You're only a half second slower than me. Not too shabby. :)

=====

Re:Good nite at the track (midnight madness)

Posted by Super six - 2008/09/07 12:06

Thanks, actually thats how I got the name it was given to me by my car club from back home that is made up of mostly LS1s. So they always left it to me to handle all the light weights especially when I was spraying. But Super6 will be back on the juice very soon!!B)

=====

Re:Good nite at the track (midnight madness)

Posted by Jason R/T - 2008/09/07 13:19

junkman306 wrote:

Yep. Warren was up on top of the car, flyinhillbilly style.

http://www.streettostrip.com/images/fbfiles/images/DRAYKAS_TOP_OF_CAR.jpg

=====

Re:Good nite at the track (midnight madness)

Posted by draykas - 2008/09/07 14:25

I was a little excited it took 8 runs before I did that run to get it to launch right and stick. going to get that purge kit to help. Junkman you are doing good getting quick.

=====

Re:Good nite at the track (midnight madness)

Posted by liltbird - 2008/09/07 14:34

Yep, it was definitely a good night!

I got to see some awesome runs, warren do a jig on his car, and I even got a few hugs and picked up a couple of times!

Congrats you guys!!

=====

Re:Good nite at the track (midnight madness)

Posted by mn12 - 2008/09/07 18:02

Congrats to everyone on what sounds like a great night of racing. Wish I could have been there but, stuff beyond my control has side-lined me for the rest of the year. I will be back next year with a different car (hopefully) and look forward to meeting more of you. Good Job!B)

=====

Re:Good nite at the track (midnight madness)

Posted by Trey - 2008/09/07 21:11

Warren, Warren,Warren, what the h*ll is a matter with you? :angry: That ain't no old Grand Prix you know. If I ever see you on top of that beautiful car again, I'm going to tell your wife.

Just kiddin. :P You were just a little excited.

Congratulations to Warren, Devin, Junkman, and super six on your new best times. It was a good time. I just wish I would have spent more time racing and less time working on my distributor.

=====

Re:Good nite at the track (midnight madness)

Posted by Devin - 2008/09/07 21:16

Wes (greatwhites) also posted a new best time.

It was a great night. If there would have been less than 95% humidity it would have been even better but it still was great air to be racing in.

I think that more than a couple of you need new badges, I'll get those awarded soon.

=====

Re:Good nite at the track (midnight madness)

Posted by ArcadeGuest - 2008/09/07 21:36

Congrats on the new times everybody.

=====

Re:Good nite at the track (midnight madness)

Posted by greatwhitess - 2008/09/08 08:27

Was a good night for alot of people. Congrats Draykas. Mustang was coming off the line hard. And Devin for the big 12.66.

I went 10.9X@134 on 305/35/18 street tires so i was pretty happy.

=====

Re:Good nite at the track (midnight madness)

Posted by junkman306 - 2008/09/08 12:48

Trey wrote:

Warren, Warren,Warren, what the h*ll is a matter with you? :angry: That ain't no old Grand Prix you know. If I ever see you on top of that beautiful car again, I'm going to tell your wife.

Just kidden. :P You where just a little excited.

Congratulations to Warren, Devin, Junkman, and super six on your new best times. It was a good time. I just wish I would have spent more time racing and less time working on my distributor.

Thanks Trey. What was up with your car? It seemed a little off from normal. :(

=====

Re:Good nite at the track (midnight madness)

Posted by draykas - 2008/09/08 20:12

hey Junkman dont give up you had some impressive runs. your getting quicker and you know what she can do!

I finally downloaded the last 4 runs from the car and damm need a purge kit nitrous wasnt coming on till 2nd because of air in line and then it was slow to come on. last run it didnt come on right away either due to a leak on one of the fittings(Devin and me saw it and tried to fix) might be able to get it fixed and pull a little more out of it.

I guess I am now the neighborhood bad boy word got out that I have the nice car that quote"luanches like a son of bitch" "with tire squealing like a stuck pig" and the little girl just says I like the pretty lights.

the sun walk turned into stop and look session. I wished the rest of you where here to take some of the credit

congrats to all the guys and gals with the fast runs and thanks for everyone who has helped me get here

=====

Re:Good nite at the track (midnight madness)

Posted by junkman306 - 2008/09/08 20:58

draykas wrote:

hey Junkman dont give up you had some impressive runs. your getting quicker and you know what she can do!

I finally downloaded the last 4 runs from the car and damm need a purge kit nitrous wasnt coming on till 2nd because of air in line and then it was slow to come on. last run it didnt come on right away either due to a leak on one of the fittings(Devin and me saw it and tried to fix) might be able to get it fixed and pull a little more out of it.

I guess I am now the neighborhood bad boy word got out that I have the nice car that quote"luanches like a son of bitch" "with tire squealing like a stuck pig" and the little girl just says I like the pretty lights.

the sun walk turned into stop and look session. I wished the rest of you where here to take some of the credit

congrats to all the guys and gals with the fast runs and thanks for everyone who has helped me get here

I'm at that point where I'm still slow and out of money. :) I think my next adventure is a set of cams and porting the heads. I wanna run decent 13's on motor. Cams and a port job ought to get me dang close. ;)

=====